

Around two weeks ago I've got in an accident at home when I almost lost two of the fingers from my right hand when operating a table saw. Even if for me this was one of the most traumatic events I've ever experienced it is really nothing compared with what the survivors of the Sandy Hook shooting or war survivors must be going through. The incident however cracked open a window for me into what PTSD condition is, as I suddenly recall the traumatic event and almost live it again in my mind. Form me it helps if I keep my mind engaged in other activities.
